INPUT 1999 - Fort Worth, USA

From the INPUT 1999 Catalogue, Larry Lauer, Associate Vice Chancellor Communications and Public Affairs at TCU:

It has been six years since INPUT last came to the United States. I can think of no better place than Fort Worth for INPUT '99 to reestablish its presence.

You'll soon find yourself brushing shoulders and sharing ideas with the individuals involved in the most intelligent television around the world. My hope is that you'll not only find new partners for your projects, but also find new friends for life."

Further information

Washington, D.C., May 30, 1997 -- The Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB) will invest in the INPUT Conference (City of Fort Worth, Texas, KERA/KDTN TV and Texas Christian University) with funds which will be provided for these three sponsors to host the International Public Television (INPUT) screening conference in April 1999. The goal of INPUT and the conference is to raise public television's standards of excellence throughout the world.
